

30 January 2026

Rufus S. rufus@stepscommunity.com

Davos Neurodiversity Summit 2026: From Awareness to Action

'Cognitive diversity is not a 'nice to have.' It is a business imperative, and it is how organisations future-proof themselves.'

Max Simpson
CEO and Co-Founder
Steps

At the Davos Neurodiversity Summit 2026, global leaders and youth advocates came together for an intergenerational dialogue on turning neurodiversity awareness into meaningful action. Steps' CEO and Co-Founder, Max Simpson, joined a panel with Professor Lawrence Fung of the Stanford Neurodiversity Project, Ava Chan of Neurodiversity HK, and Dayana Zhumabayeva of Hi, ADHD. Non-profit Initiative., moderated by Jonathan Mok.

The discussion centred on neurodivergent youth as co-designers and changemakers, highlighting the importance of accessibility, shared decision-making, and long-term commitment beyond recruitment quotas. Speakers reinforced that neuroinclusion

- strengthens organisations,
- supports human rights,
- and builds future-ready economies.

Read more at: <https://www.stepscommunity.com/blog/davos-neurodiversity-summit-2026-from-awareness-to-action/>

'Cognitive diversity is not a nice to have. It is a business imperative, and it is how organisations future-proof themselves.'

Max Simpson
CEO and Co-Founder, Steps

2026 Davos Neurodiversity Summit
20 January 2026

2026 Davos Neurodiversity Summit
Intergenerational Dialogue in the Intelligent Age

2026 Davos Neurodiversity Summit
Intergenerational Dialogue in the Intelligent Age

2026 Davos Neurodiversity Summit
Intergenerational Dialogue in the Intelligent Age

2026 Davos Neurodiversity Summit
Intergenerational Dialogue in the Intelligent Age

2026 Davos Neurodiversity Summit
Intergenerational Dialogue in the Intelligent Age

Steps
An Inclusive Community